Charles Rutherford is an architectural designer whose work is founded in the structural and sculptural. His interest in planning and use of space has led to commissions for new architectural work and the re-structuring of houses, offices and shops. He is experienced in working with local authority planning departments and English Heritage on listed buildings. He has regularly been selected for the House & Garden Top 100 Designers. He has had his own practice since 1984.

“MDH have worked for us on a number of projects for clients ranging from re-structuring to new build extensions. Their attention to detail and rigorous execution of the drawings has been exemplary. They have a strong team who have been very much appreciated by our clients. They were our first choice for our own recent works”.
